Dear Admiral Service:

I was delighted to receive a personal copy of the new centennial history, Sailors and Scholars, and I'm grateful for your kindness in sending it to me.

It is an impressive history of a remarkable institution, and John Hattendorf deserves a lot of credit for taking on the difficult task of editing and completing the work. I should add that I find his account of the "Turner Revolution" (in which I had some part) a fair-minded analysis of reforms that have profoundly influenced not only the Naval War College, but all of our senior schools.

Again, my thanks and best wishes on this 100th anniversary.

Sincerely,

Dear Dr. McDonald,

It is with a great deal of pleasure that I forward a personal copy of the recently published centennial history "Sailors and Scholars." This presentation is made in recognition of your strong personal commitment to this remarkable work.

May I also add my thanks for your dedication and attention to detail which have produced a volume worthy of the War College's place in the history of our nation. I realize that for most, if not all of you, your work on this book is but the latest manifestation of your long and loyal support for our programs at the Naval War College.

Sincerely,

JAMES E. SERVICE
